Saarland University awards Deutschlandstipendium scholarships with the support of the StudienStiftungSaar foundation (StSS).

To apply you need to be a student enrolled at Saarland University when the scholarship begins. Deutschlandstipendium scholarships are awarded independently of the applicant's financial circumstances and income and they do not affect any payments received from the central BAföG student loans programme. The scholarship begins in October 2024 and ends in September 2025.

Applications for a Deutschlandstipendium scholarship for Saarland University students must be received in the period 1 June 2024 to 30 June 2024 (11.59 p.m.). Applications may only be submitted via the online applications portal administered by StudienStiftungSaar.

Deutschlandstipendium scholarships are awarded as part of a support programme from the Federal Ministry of Education and Research (BMBF). Funding for the scholarships is shared equally between the federal government and private donors. The scholarships are initially awarded for a period of one year. If the scholarship holder continues to show good academic performance, funding may be extended. Further funding within the standard period of study is possible provided that both private and public funding is available and that the scholarship criteria continue to be met. Scholarship holders receive €300 a month for one year.

Academic performance, both at university and at school, is a key selection criterion for Deutschlandstipendium scholarships. In addition to the candidate's academic performance at school and university, the selectors may also take into account voluntary work and/or involvement in community projects and the applicant's personal or family background.
